POETRY.

Its words
Are few, but deep and solemn; and they break
Fresh from the fount of feeling!—Perceval.

As the following love ditties have come to us at the same time, though of different ink, yet the same sentiment, we insert them to be united in life and death. If they are not one who will be?

TO ADELIA

Sweet ray of life's young dreamy day,
Thou mortal star of earthly bliss,
Round whose dear form the graces play
Thou centre point of happiness—
Wilt thou permit my eye to rest,
On the fair vision of thy form?
And may hopes' tiring pinions rest,
Nor dread the wreck, nor fear the storm?

Or hast thou yet no heart to love
Breaking thus fresh from orient skies;
While earth and heav'n thy spirits move
As new lit wonders meet thine eyes?
'Delia! sweet name! yes, sweeter far
Than liquid sounds, or morning light;
'Delia, be thou my morning star
A cloud by day, a star by night.

If not—yet still, sweet girl, my soul
Shall cling to that dear form of thine;
I'll love while stars shall gild the pole
And life's last sun shall cease to shine.
Not will, but must, its sweetness prove;
Not will, but must, its conflict try;
For all the heav'n of imaged love,
And with its hope—despair and die.

LOWELL, Aug. 1846. [L—

ANSWER TO L—

Yes, thou may'st worship at the shrine
Of youth and love, thou noble youth;
Yet know they're not e'en half divine,
Nor fear to meet the solemn truth,
They fade as flowers that grace the morn,
They pass as dew drops from the rose;
And gone e'er with life's transient dawn—
Disease and time their deadly foes.

Yet while they last, e'er yet they fade
With heart embalmed for virtuous bliss
They're at thy footstool freely laid—
Thy heart, thy hand—my happiness.
Come then, dear youth—is 'Delia sweet!
Then let her name in murmuring sighs
Dwell on thy tongue, and oft repeat
Till 'Delia's self to it replies.

How sweet that law that says we 'must!'
Compelled to yield to what we love;
To yield to bliss, confide and trust;
An antipast of souls above.
Not will but must! its sweetness prove;
Not will but must! the conflict try;
Feel all the heav'n of real love
Give heart for heart, and sigh for sigh.

LOWELL, Aug. 1846. [ADELIA.

MISCELLANY.

A HARD RUB FOR TRUTH.

Old Parson M. of —, Worcester county, sometimes used to be absent on a Missionary tour. Once on a time, having just returned from one of these excursions, he found his congregation quite drowsy, and wishing to wake them up he broke off in the midst of his sermon, and began to tell of what wonderful things he had seen in York State.

Among other wonders, he said he had seen monstrous great mosquitoes, so large that many of them would weigh a pound!
The people by this were wide awake.

"Yes," continued Parson M., "and moreover, they are very often known to climb trees and bark!"

The next day one of the deacons called upon him and told him that many of the brethren were much scandalized by the big stories told the day before.

"What stories?" says Parson M.

"Why, sir, you said that the mosquitoes in York State were so large that many of them would weigh a pound."

"Well," rejoined the minister, "I do really believe that a GREAT MANY of them would weigh a pound."

"But," continued the deacon, "you also said they would climb up trees and bark?"

"Well, sir," says Parson M., "as to the climbing up on trees, I have seen them do that—haven't you, deacon?"

"Oh yes."

"Well, how could they climb up on the trees, and not climb on the bark?"

The deacon left.

A GOOD RETORT.—The Pittsburg American tells the following very good story, and we dare say it is a true one. Who the Judge is who figured as the hero, we know not, but on some points he is certainly as wise as Solomon:
Judge B— had agreed to an arrangement for marrying his daughter to a blacksmith. His son who entertained ideas

more elevated than any of his ancestors,
and was somewhat haughty in his general manner withal, when this astounding information reached him, sought an immediate interview with his father, whom he found in company with several others.

"Sir," said he to his father, "is that true which I hear, that you intend to marry my sister to a blacksmith?"

"And, pray, who are you, sir, and who were your ancestors?"

"That sir, replied the son, "I should expect to learn from you."

"Oh! sir, you shall be gratified; your grandfathers were both weavers;" and to the infinite gaud enjoyment of the son, he amused him and the company with anecdotes of their exploits on the loom.

A DOG STORY.

The Waterbury American relates as good an instance of the useful sagacity of the dog, as we remember to have lately seen recorded, numerous as stories of the kind are. While a farmer in a neighboring town was paying another for a cow, he accidentally dropped a five dollar bill in the street—Without noticing the loss, both left the spot, but the dog kept by, and on their return sometime after, he was still occupying the same place, and as they discovered with surprise, holding the lost bill between his teeth in a very careful manner, so as not to injure it.

An old Quaker's admonition to a man who was pouring fourth a torrent of ill-language to him, was this:

"Have a care, my friend, or thou mayest run thy face against my fist!"

"Will you lend father your newspaper, sir—he only wants to read it?"

"Yes, my boy—and ask him to lend me
his dinner—I only just want to eat it."
